ANOTHER TERRIBLE LOSS OF LIFE.

The Keystone Dynamite Works Again Destroyed by an Explosion.

NINE MEN BLOWN TO FRAGMENTS

The Explosion was Felt for Miles Around.

On Monday morning at ten o'clock, a sharp report told our citizens too plainly that another of our powder plants had blown up. Instantly a dense smoke located the explosion at the Keystone works, a short distance west of town. Immediately hundreds of our citizens, wives, parents, and children franticly rushing to the scene of the catastrophe.

A PRESS representative was soon on the ground and met scores of injured coming to town, but little could be learned until we reached the works. The horrible facts were soon learned that nine men had been blown to pieces, except young Sprung, whose booy was found thirty feet from where he stood in the road. His head was partially blown off.

THE DEAD.

James Joyce, single, aged 39
John Hamilton, single, aged 23.
Thos. Welsh, single, aged 36.
Frank Harrington, single, aged 20.
James Campbell, married, aged 31.
John Butler, married, aged 29
John Bossie, married, aged 55.
William J. Murphy, married, aged 21.
William Sprung, married, aged 25.

THE INJURED.

Joseph Gayney, right leg broken in two places near hip. He was taken to Williamsport Hospital same day, accompanied by his brother-in-law Jos. A Friendel. He is doing nicely and will be on his feet again within a few weeks. This was the third explosion Mr. Gayney has passed through, being severely injured twice.

Thos. Joyce employed in the nitric plant, was severely burned about the face.

Ed. Zwald, Walter Palmer, Thos. Milton, Andrew Blinzler and Simon Lucks, employed in packing house No. 2, where all more or less injured when the building tumbled down upon them. They crawled from under the wreck and hastened from further danger. Three thousand pounds of dynamite in this building did not go off.

Ed. Barker was working alone in packing house No. 3 and escaped with a few cuts and bruises.

In the dipping and nailing room were employed Fred Tompkins, Floyd Van Wert, Geo. Eaton, Wm. Hooven and Henry St. Piere. All escaped with slight injuries when the building collapsed on them,

Every one was more or less shaken up and severely cut and bruised. Our readers have so often read the fearful story that we have simply given the facts.

It cannot, of course be stated positively where the explosion first took place but it is the general opinion that the mixing room, where Bossie, Murphy, Harrington and Welsh were employed, was the first to go up, being immediately followed by packing house No. 1, where James Joyce, James Campbell, John Hamilton and John Butler were blown to atoms, their mangled remains being spattered against the fort wall.

The entire plant is almost a complete wreck.

At the extreme upper end of the valley was located the black powder dope magazine, which exploded at the same time, but did no damage.

Murrick Barker, employed in the soda house, was severely injured, being pinned under the steam pipes when the roof fell. He is suffering much from pain this morning.

In the labratory at the upper end of the valley, Chemist A. D. Ericsson and his assistant, Chas. F. Papazzoni, were cut about the face and head by flying timber. John Hemmer, engineer and J. D. Swope, firemen, were also cut and bruised badly.

The several physicians of town were promptly on hand to aid the injured and for a time were kept busy.

Supt. Geo. VanWert was in the jelatine plant at the extreme upper left hand branch, when the crash came and, with the workmen, J. M. Coyle, Geo. Curtis, Sol. St. Dun and Mr. Grein were cut and bruised about the face and head, but not serious however.

After the excitement had somewhat abated, Undertaker LaBar's assistant. Mr. Chas. Rishell, was called, who, aided by willing hands, gathered up the remains of the unfortunate men and prepared them for burial.

THE FUNERALS.

The last sad rites were commenced yesterday morning, that of depositing all that was left of eight robust, healthy men, to mother earth, viz: That of James Campbell, took place from his residence on Fifth street, at 10:00 o'clock. Rev. Robt. McCaslin, of Presbyterian church conducting the services. A large number of relatives and friends were in attendance. Deceased leaves a wife. Mr. Campbell was an Odd Fellow and that order attended in a body, conducting the services at the grave. The Powder Workers Union, of which deceased was an active member, attended in large numbers at this, as well as all other The funerals of their co-laborers.

11:00 a. m,--Thomas Joyce's funeral was held at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. George Barker, Fifth street, deceased being related by marriage to the family. Rev. O. S. Metzler officiated. Deceased was brother to Mr. Thos. Joyce, who was slightly injured and bruised by acid at the nitric plant. funeral was also largely attended.

1:00 p. m.—The funeral of William Sprung, Jr., was held from the residence of his parents, East Third street, William A. Sprung, the well known engineer being his father, Rev. O. S Metzler officiating. Deceased leaves a wife and one child. His wife was formerly Miss Berry, third daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Berry, of Sterling Run. The following relatives from a distance were in attendance at the funeral: Mrs. Anna Housler, of North Creek; Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Berry, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Berry, Misses Jennie, Edith and Lyle Berry, Wilson, Edward, John Berry, Sterling Run; A. R. Barthurst, O. Barthurst, Clarendon, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Burns, (sister), Henry Tallapaugh and daughter (uncle), Buffalo, N. Y.; Miss Hattie Russell, Mt. Jewett, Pa.

UNION MEMORIAL SERVICES.

At three o'clock union memorial services were conducted at the First Methodist Episcopal Church for the remaining dead, whose lives were wiped out so suddenly. The services were conducted by Revs. O. S. Metzler and Robt. McCaslin, assisted by Revs. Robertson and Bennett. The large edifice was crowded with relatives and friends of the dead ones.

Religious services will be conducted at St. Mark's Catholic Church this (Thursday) morning over the remains of John Butler. The large church was crowded with relatives and friends. In the absence of Father Downey the services were conducted by Father Machen, of Driftwood, who spoke eloquently of the dead young man and his co-laborers.

THE DEAD.

John Bossie, who resided on West Allegany Avenue, leaves a wife and seven small children. He formerly worked in the woods and was a hard worker. He came to Emporium from Canada.

John Butler, who resided in his neat little home on West Fifth street, has resided here all his life. He married Miss Nellie Murry in 1901 and leaves one child, besides mother, sister and brother. We knew the young man well and respected him very much.

James Campbell, who resides on Fifth street, we had the pleasure of knowing. He leaves a wife. Deceased took great interest in Odd Fellowship. A quiet unassuming young man.

William J Murphy came to this place five years ago from New Glascow, N. S, to work in the woods. During the past two years or more he has been in the powder plants. About two years ago he married Miss Lottie M. Troup, daughter of Mr. and Mrs Jacob Troup. He is well spoken of by all who knew him. He leaves two children.

James Joyce came here from Canada several years ago. He was a quiet, industrious man.

John Hamilton who came to Emporium about five years ago, and made his home in the family of Mr. Garvin. His friends especially his neighbors speak very kindly of him.

Thomas Welsh we have all known many years as a jolly good natured young man, full of innocent fun, accommodating; always industrious and ready to lend a helping hand.

Frank Harrington, the youngest, man, came to Emporium from Dunnstown, near Lock Haven. He made his home with Mr. Francisco. We hear none but good words for him.

The PRESS hopes it may be a long time before we shall be called upon to witness another such horrible sight. Yet as long as dynamite is made men will risk their lives, no doubt carelessly, at times. The Keystone Company have spared neither time nor money to throw all the safe guards around the men and the cause of this accident will always remain a mystery.

The Village Fool.

There is a peculiar situation in "The Village Fool," in which Little Wade as the Waif is stolen from the poor house authorities by old Ninny Noggins. Noggins is allowed to take the boy and the authority for his admittance to the superintendent. The waif coaxes him not to do it, and the old man brings him back and hides him in the garret of Mrs. Grouch's hotel. Ninny asks advice from Lincoln, whose picture hangs over the fireplace, and Lincoln tells him to keep the boy; he does so and escapes to the government land on Fox Lake. The incidents following are electrifying to any audience. At opera house Dec. 6.

It Always Pays.

The well known reputation of the PRESS as a reliable advertising medium these many years has been forcibly brought to our attention very many times the past year, but never so aptly as on Saturday when O. B. Barnes 'phoned the PRESS: "That 'ad' published in the PRESS offering special prices on sugar and corn was a winner; we sold all and added 500 pounds more. There was a rush all day or as long as the stock held out. The sale was a great success and I am well pleased," Of course it pays to advertise in the PRESS because the people all read the paper and are looking for bargains in all lines.

Panic in School Room.

A panic took place in an East Ward school yesterday afternoon, the scholars in room No. 5 rushing pell mell out of the building, some never stopping until they reached their homes. The panic was caused by the gas catching fire at the mixer. "Every school should organize and drill the pupils in the fire drill," says director Egan. Right you are, Mr. Egan. The nervous condition of many children, in fact older persons, in Emporium, makes it mighty easy to start a stampede. Is it to be wondered at?

Real Estate Deal.

Mr. Joseph Kaye, a member of the firm of C. B. Howard & Co., has closed the deal for the purchase of the desirable Sixth street property known as "Newton Terrace." Dr. Rieck only recently purchased the same from Mrs. E. M. Newton. Mr. Kaye takes possession about the first of the year and we learn intends making elaborate improvements.

Bound to Burn.

Fate seems to be against the Walker-Howard block. Last evening a fire started at two distinct times and had it not been that a watchman was placed in charge the fire would have gained some headway.

Box Social and Fish Pond.

There will be a box social and fish pond at Chadwick school house, Rich Valley, Saturday evening, Dec. 9th, 1905, at 7 o'clock. Proceeds will be used to purchase a bell for the school house.

Annual Election.

Good-Will Tent, No. 40, K. O. T. M., will hold annual election of officers on Friday evening, Dec. 1st.

All the hackneyed ideas of melodrama have been eliminated from Rowland and Clifford's "Over Niagara Falls" and those new to the stage substituted. Emporium Opera House, Saturday, Dec. 2.

Man About Town.

The volume of trade is increasing among our merchants. Mike Hogan reports eggs steady. At any rate none of his customers report them being too fresh.

Brother Kenly in the Gas Office, says he thinks the reason there are no marriages in heaven is, because there are no ministers there to perform the ceremony.

On Monday last a southwest wind on "Bill" Thomas' farm blew a two year old heifer up under the eaves of his barn and held her there for three days. "Bill" had to shoot her to keep her from starving to death.

"Add" Gross says a farmer on Potato Creek lost several hogs in a peculiar way. The hogs were of the Razorback, long tailed breed, their tails dragging through the mud during the fall months, caused a ball of mud to form on the end and it grew until it got so large and heavy that it pulled their skins back so tight they could not shut their eyes and they died for the want of sleep.

Brother Lee, down at the tower is not feeling very well, is as the horsemen say, "off his feed." He says he is not afraid to die, but prefers to stay here where he is acquainted. He says he has been traveling toward heaven now for ten years. A gentleman from Renevo remarked, if he had been traveling toward heaven for ten years and had got no farther than East Emporium, he should certainly think he was not on the right road.

Some corn stalks are on exhibition in a grocery store in the East end that during the past summer grew so fast that they pulled themselves up by the roots.

A genuine hobo went into Peter Beattie's cigar store ths other morning and told Peter if he did not give him a quarter, he would have to do something he very much disliked. "What is that," asked Peter "Work" said the tramp. Peter told him to get out.

Prof. Ericsson says, Cavelleria, Rusticanna, Tannhauser, Lohengrin and the compositions of Verdi, Rossini, Wagner and Bizet will never be popular here until they stop singing, "Coming Filled with Rye," at the club

Judge Brennan says we are having the finest full weather here since the sixties. He remembers then the dust blew out of North Creek and reminded him of the year of the big wind in Ireland.

The conscensus of opinion of many people in town is, that ten cents worth of dynamite is bigger than a church steeple.

We often hear of people trying to make both ends meet. It is easy enough.

The baby rolls upon the floor,
Kicks up his little feet—
Sticks his toes into his mouth,
Making both ends meet.
The butcher kills a fatted pig,
Cuts off his ears and feet,
Grinds him into sausage links,
Making both ends meet.
Attach a tin pail to a dog,
He howls along the street
And madly tries to bite his tail,
Making both ends meet.

GASSAWAY.

"Over Niagara Falls."

That the advance notices sent out by the management do not exaggerate when they state that the reproduction of the Niagara Falls and the surroundings are as perfect as the deft hand of the scenic artist, with the aid of every device known to electrical invention can make it, the PRESS prints a clipping from the Buffalo Courier.

"Demand twenty views of Falls," score of curtain calls for scenic effect in Academy Theatre last night.

"There seems to be no limit to the enthusiasm of Buffalo over the realistic spectacle of the cataract of Niagara in end of the third act of "Over Niagara Falls" at the Academy. Monday night the audience demadning the lifting of the curtain eighteen times, and last night twenty. Buffalo people know what the Falls look like, and when they cheered and shouted for five solid minutes, it is easy to tell there must be virtue in the article shown. The scene is that of the base of the Falls, with the water pouring down on the rocks. In the foreground is a stretch of tossing water pouring down on the rocks into which the heorine descends in a seemingly awful fall, and is rescued by the hero.

"The house quivers with the mechanically produced imitation of the roar of the water, and the splash and spin of the flood is very realistic. It is done by the use of compound reflections of many lights on the back drops all working in perfect time to obtain the effec. It is certainly an achievement in scenic effects and requires no effort of the imagination to be fully appreciated." Emporium Opera House, Saturday, Dec 2nd.

The Observer.

The Observer has just been looking carefully through Governor Bradford's "History of the Plymouth Plantation" for an account of the first Thanksgiving Day, said to have been celebrated by the Pilgrim Fathers in 1621. His search has been in vain. Governor Bradford makes no mention of any such observance, although the index to the History published by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, makes a misleading reference to page 126. A careful reading of this page reveals no word of a Thanksgiving service. On the following page there is on account of conditions in the autumn of 1621 which may well have called forth a service of Thanksgiving, and probably did, although Bradford makes no mention of it.

"They begane now to gather in ye small harvest they had, and to fitte up their houses and dwellings against winter, being all well recovered in health and strength, and had all things in good plenty; for as some were thus imployed in affairs abroad, others were exersised in fishing, aboute, codd, & bass, & other fish, of which they tooke good store, of which every family had their portion. All ye summer there was no wante. And now began to come in store of foule as winter approached, of which this place did abound when they came first (but afterwards decreased by degrees). And besids water foule, ther was great store of wild Turkies, of which they took many; besids venison, &c. Besids they had aboute a peck a meale a weeke to a person, or now since harvest, Indian corne to yt proportion. Which made many afterwards write so largely of their plenty hear to their friends in England, which were not fained, but true reports."

Bradford's History has been justly pronounced "one of the most interesting records of human struggle ever penned." Certainly no thoughtful person can read it without being deeply impressed with the truth of Fiske's observation, that "never in the history of the world did the Almighty Dollar play a less conspicuous part than in the founding of Plymouth Colony."

The Lyrics on Friday Night.

An evening of rare enjoyment will be furnished the patrons of the Star Course at the opera house, Friday night when the Lyric Glee Club, with Mary Agnes Doyle, specialist in Irish Dialect, will give one of their unique entertainments. The management is advised that the company is making one of the greatest hits of the season. Their appearance at Morristown, N. J., Tuesday night of last week, was the occasion of a veritable ovation. Miss Doyle is said to be inimitable in her line of impersonations.

Thanksgiving Offering.

The United Thanksgiving offering by the several churches, for the families of the men who lost their lives in the recent dynamite explosion, totals $1,096.71. This is a splendid sum and will be judiciously apportioned among the families of the unfortunates, the measure of need being the basis of distribution. This substantial expression of sympathy with the bereaved is worthy of all praise and is a fresh evidence of the generosity and greatheartedness of our people.

Rev. O S. Metzler will receive applications for janitor of the First M. E. Church. Apply at once.

Everybody Works But Father.

Everybody works but Father
Is the popular song of the day,
Everybody works but Father
And he stands around in the way;
Everybody works but father,
Why should the old man work,
Has'nt he done his duty,
When did the old man shirk.

Who made the home for mother,
Who kept the boys in school,
Who furnished all the sinues,
Do you think the old man is a fool;
Who watched the children growing,
From milking to manhoods state,
Laboring hard for their comfort,
Hours both early and late.

Thinking only of their future,
Giving to them a good name,
Knowing if they ever disgraced it,
They would be only to blame,
Fighting misfortune and sickness,
Keeping the wolf from the door,
Clothing and feeding the children,
How could he do any more.

Let the young fellows get busy,
Follow the old man's trail,
Put on his old regimentals,
And carry his old dinner pail.
Everyone works but father,
Let the old man take his ease,
Give to him half of your earnings,
With the other half do as you please.

Another Bucktail Gone.

ELDRED—Died at Goldwin, Virginia, October 28th, 1905, in his eighty-first year, Captain John A. Eldred, brother of Ep. B. and Henry R. Eldred and Mrs. Miranda Schimmel, of Milford, Pa.—Warren Mail. Captain John A. Eldred came to Cameron, county (then Clinton) about 1850. He was engaged at lumbering; was elected first sheriff of the county at the election held October 11, 1860 for county offices; he held the office from 1861 to 1864. Was one of the 315 men that marched onto the three board rafts April 28, 1861 on the Sinnamahoning and went down the river to a place called Rattlesnake and then boarded the cars for Harrisburg. He was elected Captain of Company C. ("Old Bucktails", and his company was mustered in regularly June 1st, 1861. He resigned Sept. 10, 1861. He left this county in 1867.

DESTRUCTIVE FIRE

Walker-Howard Brick Block Completely Gutted. Loss on Building and Contents, Estimated at $19,000.

A destructive fire visited Emporium Tuesday morning at four o'clock, completely gutting the large brick block owned by the estates of Geo. A. Walker and William Howard. The fire started, it is thought, in the kitchen connected with the Business Men's Club and rapidly spread to the adjoining rooms the flames soon ate its way to the loft, between the duplicate roofs and baffled the firemen for several hours. The fire continued to rage until the following afternoon, in spite of the efforts of the firemen. The structure, a solid brick buildigg, is completely gutted and it almost baffled our department to confine the fire within the building, thus saving the adjoining properties of Dr. Bardwell and others. It was the most stubborn fire known here in years.

The block was occupied by Murry & Coppersmith, hardware, on ground floor stores. Their loss is severe, their winter line of goods having just been put in position.

The second floor was occupied by the Business Men's Club and Dr. Mead's Dental offices. The former's handsome rooms and furniture is a total loss. Dr. Mead's loss is a severe one, only part of his outfit in damaged condition, being removed. In fact Dr. Mead was partially overcome by smoke and would have perished had it not been for Ed. Robinson, the Club Stewart, who pulled him out of bed.

LOSSES AND INSURANCE.

Walker-Howard, on building, loss $8,000; insurance $5,500.

Murry & Coppersmith, loss $9,000 insurance, $5,400.

Business Men's Club, loss $1,500; insurance $1,000.

Dr. Mead, loss $500; no insurance.

Cleaning a City.

New Orleans has had a costly lesson, and is not inclined to forget it. The experience with yellow fever has taught wisdom. The danger from the epidemic is over, largely owing to the energetic, systematic and intelligent way in which the city government went at the work of combating the disease. New Orleans did well and nobly in the emergency. The authorities, with American pluck and determination, rose to the occasion and fought a heroic battle against the evil which carried with it so much of terror. The stress of the conflict is ended and the city breathes more freely. But the Crescent City does not intend to stop there, says a recent report. It has learned the importance of the ounce of prevention which far excels in value the pound of cure. New Orleans means to make yellow fever as impossible in that locality as the raising of tropical plants amid the perpetual ice of the polar regions. And the city is going to the root of the matter. Yellow fever flourishes only when conditions invite it, and is spread, as the experts are convinced, largely by mosquitoes. New Orleans is going to insist upon cleanliness, and is waging a war of extermination against mosquitoes. Thus permanent immunity from the fever is anticipated. The city lies in such a position that it is surrounded by marshy spots, which are the breeding places of mosquitoes, while open cisterns and neglected cesspools and gutters have promoted the multiplication of the pests and contributed toward carrying the contagion. A general order to clean up has gone forth, and cleaning up means the death warrant of the mosquito and the abolition of the fever germ. New Orleans will be an object lesson to other southern cities, and from the yellow fever visitation of the present year will come forth results that are likely to ward off the disease indefinitely. Cuba was purified by its American rulers and freed not only from Spanish domination but from yellow fever. There is no reason why American cities should not be made and kept equally exempt from the scourge.

Praise for Our Women.

One traveler in this country has learned that American women do not always wear rings on their fingers and bells on their toes, and attend monkey dinners every other evening. Privy Councilor Jacob Minor, who has just returned to Vienna, has confided to the Freie Presse that he really never met an eccentric or an over-excitable American woman. This may be, he says, because he did not enter a single millionaire's house while here. At any rate he met only two types; cultured, refined women au courant with what is going on in the world, and honest, hard-working women. The latter class, he admits, he also saw little of. They were too busy to take any interest in him. As for the others, Prof. Minor found that they had plenty of time to represent their sex, and their country—and to please. Certainly they seem to have pleased him. Even the plain ones, he says, compelled one's interest after short acquaintance, and every single one, he declares, has beautiful eyes and teeth! Finally, it appears that American women have a kindliness, a courtesy, and an easy poise undreamed of by Europeans. After this tribute, Prof. Minor can rest assured that he will find American women more charming than ever when he comes again.

The growing importance of the trolley lines is significantly illustrated in several new uses to which they are put. In Ohio, for instance, the cars played a prominent part in the late political campaign. Gov. Herrick, the Rejublican candidate, who was renominated and and made a vigorous canvass, toured Ohio in a special trolley car. He and his party co-workers found it a great convenience and advantage. He could get about with remarkable celerity and at the same time avoid much of the fatigue and discomfort that would attend an attempt to drive over the same ground, which he would have been obliged to do had the trolley not been available.

EVERY YEAR

Mr. Platt Got $10,000 from the Equitable.

TO USE IN POLITICS

The Mutual Life and New York Life Also Gave Frequently--Tarbell and Nichols Talk.

New York, Nov. 22.—The identity of Senator Depew's "rantankerous friend from up the river" was disclosed in the session of the legislative insurance investigating committee yesterday by the testimony of John A. Nichols, a lawyer under retainer by the Equitabe Life Insurance Co. Mr. Nichols had written Senator Depew a letter referring to an individual in the above terms, and this letter was read at the session of the committee Friday when Senator Depew was on the stand. The senator was unable to recall who was meant by the "rantankerous friend," but yesterday Mr. Nichols disclosed a series of payments to W. S. Manning, of Albany, a former actuary who had been connected with the investigation of insurance companies in 1877.

Aside from the disclosures by Nichols, the feature of the day was the appearance of Senator Thomas C. Platt, who told of the contributions of the insurance companies to state campaigns. The Equitable, the Mutual Life and the New York Life were the only insurance companies that made such contributions. The Equitable Life, the senator said, contributed regularly $10,000 to the state campaigns, the Mutual Life the same sum frequently and the New York Life a sum not as large, occasionally. These monies were always delivered in cash to Senator Platt's office by messenger, and he turned them over to the state committee.

The senator said he was expected to influence the legislature when any legislation appeared that was hostile to the insurance companies. Senator Platt said he believed he had asked President McCurdy, of the Mutual Life, for a contribution when the needs were very great. He had, however, never been asked to use his influence on any measure before the legislature, nor had he ever done so.

Gage E. Tarbell, second vice president of the Equitable Life, was also a witness. He detailed a history of the agencies of insurance companies.

A MILLION IN FIVE MINUTES.

That Was the Profit of a New York Speculator When Cotton Prices Soared.

New York, Nov. 22.—Joseph Hoadley made $1,000,000 in five minutes Tuesday over a sudden rise in cotton prices.

Cotton leaped $5 a bale in less than five minutes, meaning an increase of $50,000,000 in the valuation of the year's crop.

Yesterday's flurry in cotton was brought about quick as a flash by the receipt of telegraphic information from the census bureau at Washington, showing that up to November 14 only 7,498,000 bales of cotton had been ginned, as against 9,786,646 bales at the corresponding time last year.

New Orleans, Nov. 22.—With the ginners' report coming like a bolt from a clear sky, yesterday's operations were the most exciting of the year in the local cotton market. From the lowest to the highest the range in prices throughout the active future positions ran as high as 105 points and the net gain over Monday's closing after the satisfied longs had taken profits was from 87 to 89 points.

When the report was due at 1 o'clock local time, prices were at the lowest of the day. Nearly every bull looked for a report of 8,000,000 bales. The report showing less than 7,500,000 bales ginned is taken to mean, if the estimate of the Southern Cotton association that 75 per cent. of the crop was actually ginned this year up to November 14 is right, a crop of slightly below 9,000,000 bales.

WERE BLOWN TO PIECES.

Four Men are Killed by an Explosion in a Laboratory.

South River, N. J., Nov. 22.—Four men were blown to pieces yesterday afternoon by an explosion at the laboratory of the International Smokeless Powder and Chemical Co. at Parlin. They were:

John Pierce, Frank Spratford, John Applegate and J. W. Redpath, superintendent of the laboratory.

What caused the explosion will never be known, as only the four men were in the building at the time. The building was a one-story frame structure and because of the liability to explosions was separated from all others in the plant except one by a space of several hundred feet. The next building was a store house in which supplies used in the other were stored. This caught fire and was burned.

Another Disaster at Sea.

Halifax, Nov. 22.—The violent storm which swept the coast of Nova Scotia the latter part of the last week apparently has claimed another victim. A two-masted steamer is thought to have gone to the bottom on Thursday off Beaver Harbor, 55 miles from Halifax. Her identity has not been established.

Two Men Killed by a Train.

Vicksburg, Mich., Nov. 22.—Section Foreman John Thomas and Chris Haverman, of Thomas' crew, were instantly killed yesterday by an eastbound Grand Trunk passenger train.

CASTE RULES

In the Naval Academy with an Iron Hand.

A CODE OF HONOR.

Its Provisions are Illegal and Unwritten--The Meriwether Court-Martial.

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 23.—Midshipman Minor Meriwether, jr., of Lafayette, La., a member of the third class of the naval academy, was put on trial here Wednesday before a naval court-martial on charges that include that of manslaughter in having caused the death of Midshipman James R. Branch, jr., of New York, a member of the class above him, as a result of a prearranged fist fight which took place on the evening of Sunday, November 5. An operation was performed on Branch the next night, but he died on the following Tuesday.

The first and gravest charge is manslaughter in having caused the death of Branch, but there are two other charges, the second supported by two specifications and the third by one. The second charge is of violation of the third clause of the eighth article of the rules for the government of the navy. The first specification is that Meriwether applied to Branch the names of sneak and coward and the second that he assaulted him. The third charge, of conduct to the prejudice of discipline, specifies that Meriwether engaged in a fight with Branch.

The sad incident of the death of young Branch under such circumstances has called attention to the existence at the naval academy of an unwritten code governing the student body, but quite outside the authoritative regulations and generally in violation of them. Under the "code" every detail of these fights is fixed, the midshipmen on duty abstaining from reporting them. These facts were very cleverly brought out both by the judge advocate and in the cross-examination by Lieut. Commander Robison for the defense.

Midshipman Fitch, who refereed the fight which was followed by Branch's death, stated that he had officiated in 19 such contests and Midshipman McKittrick testified that he had taken part in nine. Detailed accounts were given of the arrangements by which midshipmen on duty acquiesced in absences without leave and other derelictions in order that the fights might go on, and the testimony also showed that although frequently severe injuries resulted from these fights and the recipients often had to be taken to the hospital, nothing further was ever heard of them.

Interesting side lights to hazing, or "running" as it is called at the academy developed from the testimony of one of the midshipmen. Meriwether had been generally disliked, he said, because he was too "ratty," that is, it was explained, that he did not abide by the rules laid down for the government of the lower classmen. Some of these were that he should never enter "Lovers Lane," an academy walk, that he should turn all corners at right angles, should not look at an upper classman and should answer most respectfully when addressed by one of them, that he must never touch the table nor ask for anything during a meal.

An Envoy from Abyssinia's Ruler Visits President Roosevelt.

Washington, Nov. 23.—El Hadjie Abdallah Basha, minister of commerce for Abyssinia, called upon President Roosevelt yesterday and presented to him a letter from Emperor Menelik. He also brought gifts for the chief magistrate.

The president extended a cordial welcome to his visitor, who first handed him the emperor's letter of greeting. Unfortunately this screed was in the Abyssinian language which no one could interpret and the president was obliged to defer the reading of the message. Then Basha presented in behalf of Emperor Menelik three elephants' tusks, one being a gigantic specimen nine feet long and of great rarity and value. As his personal offering Basha gave the president the skin of a magnificent Numidian lion.

The nature of Basha's mission was explained to the president through an interpreter. Basha already has visited France and England, but regards America as the most desirable field for cultivation from a commercial point of view. Looking to this country as one without any possible sinister political designs upon Abyssinia, the emperor of that country feels disposed to favor American investors in the exploitation of his country. Therefore Basha stated that he had with him a number of concessions of value for the development of the material and industrial resources of his country which he was prepared to place in American hands. The president told his visitor that he wished him success.

Cresceus Is Sold for $21,000.

New York, Nov. 23.—Cresceus, the world's champion trotting stallion, record 2:02¼, was sold at auction yesterday for $21,000 at the Old Glory horse sale here to M. W. Savage, of Minneapolis, Minn. Only one other bid was made, which was for $20,000, offered by P. H. McGuire, of New York.

HOSPITALS CROWDED

MAJORITY OF PATIENTS WOMEN

Mrs. Pinkham's Advice Saves Many From this Sad and Costly Experience.

It is a sad but true fact that every year brings an increase in the number of operations performed upon women in our hospitals. More than three-fourths of the patients lying on those snow white beds are women and girls who are awaiting or recovering from operations made necessary by neglect.

Every one of these patients had plenty of warning in that bearing down feeling, pain at the left or right of the womb, nervous exhaustion, pain in the small of the back, leucorrhœa, dizziness, flatulency, displacements of the womb or irregularities. All of these symptoms are indications of an unhealthy condition of the ovaries or womb, and if not heeded the trouble will make headway until the penalty has to be paid by a dangerous operation, and a lifetime of impaired usefulness at best, while in many cases the results are fatal.

The following letter should bring hope to suffering women. Miss Luella Adams, of the Colonnade Hotel, Seattle, Wash., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"About two years ago I was a great sufferer from a severe female trouble, pains and headaches. The doctor prescribed for me and finally told me that I had a tumor on the womb and must undergo an operation if I wanted to get well. I felt that this was my death warrant, but I spent hundreds of dollars for medical help, but the tumor kept growing. Fortunately I corresponded with an aunt in the New England States, and she advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it was said to cure tumors. I did so and immediately began to improve in health, and I was entirely cured, the tumor disappearing entirely, without an operation. I wish every suffering woman would try this great preparation."

Just as surely as Miss Adams was cured of the troubles enumerated in her letter, just so surely will Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cure every woman in the land who suffers from womb troubles, inflammation of the ovaries, kidney troubles, nervous excitability and nervous prostration.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all young women who are ill to write her for free advice. Address, Lynn, Mass.

HISTORICAL GLEANINGS.

One of the fads of 1770 was the wearing of two watches.

The drum is said to have been the first musical instrument of the human race.

Four shillings per annum was the rent of a five-roomed house in Henry VIII.'s time.

Records of Firfax county, Virginia, show that eGorge Washington owned at the age of 27 50,000 acres of land, and in 1790 the Washington family had killed 150 hogs for their use.

New York was first called Gotham by Washington Irving and J. K. Paulding in their humorous work "Salmagundi," in sarcastic allusion to the singular wisdom of its inhabitants. There is a Gotham in England, seven miles from Nottingham, the people of which are usually styled "the wise men of Gotham," because for hundreds of years they have been credited with saying and doing the most foolish things.

Automatic cooking boxes were in general use among the Hebrews nearly 2,000 years ago. The Greek and Roman writers frequently refer to them. In his edition of "Juvenal," for example, Friedlander cites a commentator who refers to "the Jews who, a day before the Sabbath, put their viands hot into the cooking boxes, the pots being covered with napkins and wrapped about with hay, so that they may have warm food on the Sabbath."

WASTED TO A SHADOW.

But Found a Cure After Fifteen Years of Suffering.

A. H. Stotts, messenger at the State Capitol, Columbus, O., says: "For fifteen years I had kidney troubles, and though I doctored faithfully, could not find a cure. I had heavy backaches, dizzy headaches and terrible urinary disorders. One day I collapsed, fell insensible on the sidewalk, and then wasted away in bed for ten weeks. After being given up, I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. In a couple of months I regained my old health, and now weigh 188 pounds. Twelve boxes did it, and I have been well two years."

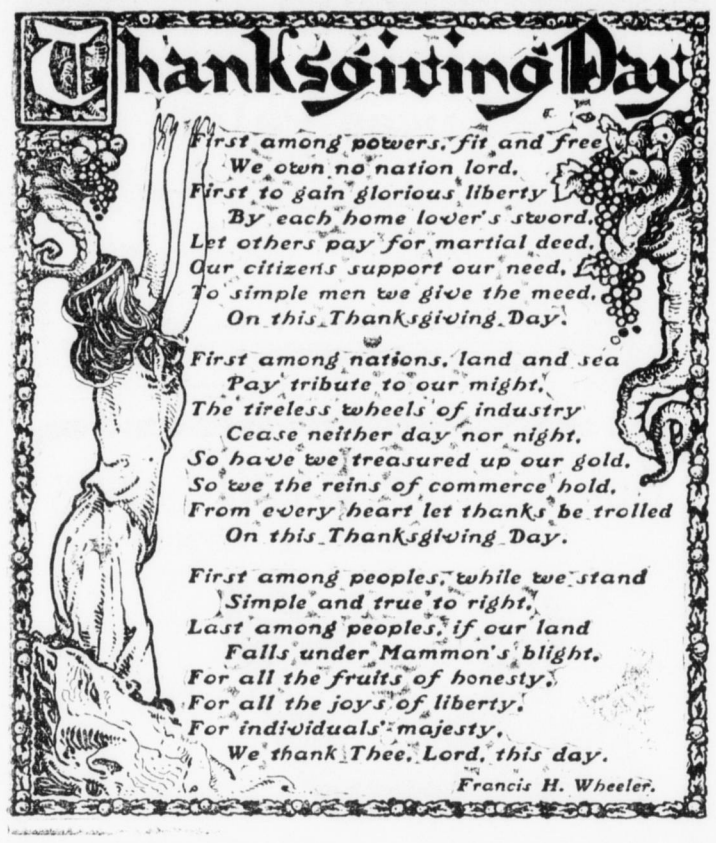
UNDERTAKING.



Thanksgiving Day
First among powers, fit and free
We own no nation lord.
First to gain glorious liberty
By each home lover's sword.
Let others pay for martial deed.
Our citizens support our need,
To simple men we give the meed.
On this Thanksgiving Day.
First among nations, land and sea
Pay tribute to our might.
The tireless wheels of industry
Cease neither day nor night.
So have we treasured up our gold.
So we the reins of commerce hold.
From every heart let thanks be trolled
On this Thanksgiving Day.
First among peoples, while we stand
Simple and true to right,
Last among peoples, if our land
Falls under Mammon's blight.
For all the fruits of honesty.
For all the joys of liberty.
For individuals' majesty,
We thank Thee, Lord, this day.

A RECOVERED THANKSGIVING

By BERTHA E. BUSH

"BUT, Uncle John, I didn't have any Thanksgiving. And now it's all gone by. I feel dreadfully. If I live to be ever so old, I can't make up for this Thanksgiving."

The little voice was very doleful, and the hot little hand that clung to his very small and soft. The young man longed to comfort this small neighbor of his, who was dearer than the little nieces from whom she had caught this way of addressing him. Perhaps that was because her face against the pillow looked so much like that other face that was the loveliest in the world to him. But how could he be a comforter when he was in need of comfort himself."

"It's too bad, Maisie, but you aren't the only one who has had hard times," he said. "I didn't have any Thanksgiving, either, and I don't feel as if I should ever have one again."

Maisie's brown eyes opened wide.

"Why, Uncle John; you went to the dinner. Mamma said so. And you had turkey and cranberries and ice cream and oranges. I would have gone, too, if I had not been sick. Mamma was going to stay at home with me, but Aunt Ruth said she wanted to, so mamma went. Wasn't that funny? I don't see how Aunt Ruth could have wanted to stay at home. I wanted to go, dreadfully. I pretty near cried."

"DEAR GOVERNOR."

"So did I," said the young man, under his breath. Maisie went on:

"You see, this was going to be such a lovely Thanksgiving, and I had planned about it so long. I haven't ever been invited to a big folks' Thanksgiving dinner before, and all the people I liked best were going to be there—you, and Aunt Ruth, and mamma, and papa, and the rest. And Mrs. Smith has such lovely dinners, everybody says. And I like turkey best of anything. It seems as if I just couldn't stand it. I had counted the days ever since there were a hundred, I guess. But, Uncle John, why didn't you have a Thanksgiving? Couldn't you eat any dinner? Did you have a stomach ache, too?"

"No," said Uncle John; "I had a different kind of an ache."

"What kind of an ache?" persisted Maisie.

"A heart-ache," answered Uncle John. "My Thanksgiving wasn't there." Then he grew ashamed of his confidence. "It takes more than a dinner to make Thanksgiving for grown people," he said, lightly.

"Maisie," called a soft voice from the hall.

"It's Aunt Ruth," cried Maisie, starting up in delight. But with just one glance at the tall figure beside Maisie's sofa, Aunt Ruth fled upstairs.

"Isn't it funny?" mused Maisie. "Aunt Ruth used to just like to be where you were, and now she won't come at all. Every time she sees you, seems as if she ran away. I don't like it."

"I don't like it, either," said the young man, in such a strange tone that Maisie looked at him curiously. "Well, I suppose I'd better go now. What would you like to have me bring you the next time I come?"

"Another Thanksgiving day. That's what I want most," said Maisie, with a wistful smile. "Uncle John," suddenly, "who makes Thanksgiving day?"

"The governor, I suppose," answered Uncle John. "He issues a proclamation every year."

"Oh, then," cried Maisie, "I know what I want you to do. Write to the governor and ask him to make another Thanksgiving day for you and me; won't you, Uncle Tom?"

"I think it would be better for you to write it yourself," answered Uncle John, and he brought her pencil and paper and sat by her to help spell the words until the following bona fide letter was produced in very crooked printing:

"Dear Governor: Please can we have another Thanksgiving day and have it next week. I was sick and could not eat any turkey or any good things. I ain't very big, but I like turkey. Please let us have it.

"Your friend,

"MAISIE Z——."

Then he put the letter into an envelope, and showed Maisie how to direct it. "But, Uncle John, I forgot to say anything about you," said Maisie.

"Oh, well," answered Uncle John, hastily, "I wouldn't have you say anything about me on any account. That's our secret, Maisie. You will keep it, won't you, and not tell anybody."

"Yes," answered Maisie. "I won't tell anybody."

But alas! Uncle John should have been more careful in specifying what particular point should be kept a secret. Maisie thought only of the letter, and when Aunt Ruth came down as soon as the tall figure was well out of sight, she proceeded to keep the secret after the fashion of little girls.

"Uncle John and I have a secret, Aunt Ruth," she said. Aunt Ruth flushed prettily. She always got red cheeks, somehow, when Uncle John's name was mentioned. But she held her head up proudly.

"I don't want to know it," she said. "You mustn't tell secrets, Maisie."

"Oh, no," answered Maisie. "I wouldn't tell a secret. It's about Thanksgiving. I didn't have any, you know, and Uncle John says he didn't have any, either."

"Why not?" asked Aunt Ruth, with her eyes on the floor.

"I don't know," said Maisie. "I asked him if he had a stomach-ache, and he said no, it was a heart-ache."

"Oh," said Aunt Ruth, softly. "You might have asked him if he didn't think other people had heart-aches, too. You might have asked him why—What else did he say, Maisie?"

"Not much," answered Maisie, cunningly keeping her secret. "He said he didn't feel as if he ever would have a Thanksgiving again. He said he almost cried. Wasn't that funny for a big, grown-up man?"

"Very funny," assented Aunt Ruth, and she must have meant it, for her tone sounded a great deal happier. Then she was perfectly lovely to Maisie for the rest of the afternoon.

When papa came home from town a day or two later, he had a queer look on his face, and a very large and peculiarly shaped express bundle in his arms.

"What in the world?" he said to Maisie's mamma, as he exhibited it to her, along with a large official letter stamped with the governor's seal and addressed to Maisie. And mamma answered: "I can't imagine. I'm afraid to give it to her."

Then Maisie, who had almost recovered, came running up.

"D-e-s M-o-i-n-e-s," she spelled. "Why, mamma, that's where I sent my letter to the governor. This must be the answer."

Sure enough, when the letter and package were opened they were found to contain the biggest turkey the little town had ever seen, and the following proclamaiton from the kind governor:

"Having been informed that Maisie Z——, of L——, was ill on the 28th of November and was thereby prevented from joining in the festivities incident to Thanksgiving day, I, therefore, recommend that at a convenient hour on Monday, December 9, 1901, Mr. and Mrs. Z——, together with their family and such young friends as Maisie may choose to invite, assemble in the family dining-room and there, with thankful hearts for country, home and the blessed influence of children, partake of such bounties as are usually served in Christian America on the day appointed for national thanksgiving, and that special attention shall be given that Maisie shall be bountifully supplied with that portion of the national bird and such other delicacies most congenial to her.

"L. M. SHAW, Governor of Iowa.

"Signed at Des Moines, Ia., this 6th day of December, 1901."

It was a most delightful Thanksgiving. Maisie and Uncle John both agreed on that point. For the turkey was delicious, and Maisie was deemed sufficiently well to have a bountiful supply, as the good governor had recommended; and Aunt Ruth was there in her prettiest dress, as smiling and gracious as though she had never held aloof. And Maisie chose the turkey's wishbone, and when it had dried for an hour or two, she brought it to Uncle John.

"Wish with me, Uncle John," she said. Uncle John took hold of the end and glanced at Aunt Ruth. She must have understood his look, for she came softly toward him, with cheeks as pink as her ribbons.

"I HAVE EVERYTHING I WANT, TOO."

"Oh," cried Maisie, as it snapped. "I have the longest end, and I didn't want to get it. I have everything I want this Thanksgiving. I meant you to get your wish, Uncle John."

"I have everything that I want, too," answered Uncle John, softly, as he looked at Aunt Ruth. "This has been the best Thanksgiving I ever had in my life."

TURKEY GIBLETS

The Season's Travesty.

Mrs. Dorcas—How is it, my poor man, you have no Thanksgiving dinner this year?

Tattered Tom—I follered yer advice mum. I wuz good dis year, an' didn't do nothin' to git committed to de island.—Judge.

Realism.

Editor—I liked your Thanksgiving jokes, Mr. Scribbs, but you didn't get them in early enough.

Mr. Scribbs—Well, that's it, you see, I can't make 'em, unless I'm full of turkey and cranberry sauce.

NEITHER SORT OF A BIRD.

"I'm very thankful I'm not a turkey," simpered Miss Elder, as Mrs. Small's boarders gathered around the table.

"And no one ever takes you for a spring chicken," replied Miss Flypp.

A Hard Choice.

Jimmy—Wot yer cryin' fer, Johnny?

Johnny—I wanter go ter de foot ball game.

Jimmy—Wy don't yer sneak away an' see it?

Johnny—I'm afraid all de turkey'll be eat up by de time I git back.

On Thanksgiving Day.

NOW IS THE TIME TO PAINT.

Important Memorandum.—The painter is the most important factor in painting. The cost of paint, covering say $40.00 ($40.00 labor, $30.00 paint), with the best applied by a duchess ($30.00 labor, $30.00 paint), will last five years. The same paint applied by the good painter's pal at $12.00—the poor painter's, $20.00.

'Above all, USE GOOD PAINT!'

The oil! linseed oil! Just pure linseed is the "life"—the one great requisite of good paint for which there is no substitute—and the sure way to get the pure, fresh linseed oil is to buy the oil and separately. For every gallon of Kinloch Paint buy one gallon of linseed oil. This makes two gallons of paint, ready for use. You then know that the paint you're putting on your house is alive—"the genuine oil is in it," and paint is not paint unless it contains 50% of really pure oil. We will further explain the virtues of Kinloch Paint if you will call and see us.

Kinloch HIGH GRADE LINSEED OIL HOUSE PAINT

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

Washington, Nov. 25th, 1905.

Editor Press:—

Secratary Shaw has given it out to some personal friends that there will be no call in the coming Presidential message for fresh financial legislation so far as he is concerned. He has not given any figures, but states that the condition of the country is much better than during the last fiscal year and that the deficit which was then something like $24,000,000 will be considerably reduced. Secretary Shaw has been called upon by a number of business delegations that feared the imposition of fresh taxes and he assured them all that he was not in favor of upsetting the business conditions by any fresh financial legislation at this time. This assurance has been very grateful to the industries that thought they were threatened and is in line with the stand that has been taken by Speaker Cannon and the leaders in the Senate against any attempt at financial legislation just now. Whether the message will contain any recommendations for tariff revision, it is of course impossible to say. It is known that next to railway rate legislation, the President is most anxious for tariff legislation, but in view of the bad prospect for legislation except of the most necessary sort and many other matters clamoring for attention. It is possible that the matter will be allowed to go for the time being and will be dealt with in a special message later on.

There is a fear expressed in some quarters that the canal situation may have an unfavorable effect on the financial showing of the country. It is stated that before Congress passes the canal bond bill, the canal commission will have contracted liabilities amounting to fully $16,000,000 that will have to be met by the close of the coming fiscal year. It is the intention of the Commission to pay back this money into the Treasury out of the proceeds of the bond sale, but there will be some delay in issuing the bonds as additional legislation will be needed before they are available as the basis of national bank circulation. They were not so made by the Spooner Act and it is recognized that they are to bring much above par or even that.

There has been some discussion as to whether the Panama Canal Commission was authoized to go on with the work and contract bills in excess of the $10,000,000 already appropriated. But the matter was laid before both Secretary Taft and Chairman Shouts and they both agreed that under the Spooner Act the President was empowered to go ahead with the construction of the canal certainly up to the limit of the $135,000,000 authorized in the bond issue in addition to the $10,000,000 already granted. The board of consulting engineers of the canal have already held their last meeting before reassembling in Brussels where the report will be finally signed. They will sail before the end of this month.

Saldom is such beautiful scenery presented by a traveling company as that which will be shown in "Over Niagara Falls," Emporium Opera House, Saturday, Dec. 2.

Son Lost Mother.

"Consumption runs in oue family, and through it I lost my mother," writes E. B. Reid, of Harmony, Me. "For the past five years, however on the slightest sign of a Cough or Cold, I have taken Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, which has saved me from serious lung trouble." His mother's death was a sad loss for Mr. Reid, but he learned that lung trouble must not be neglected, and how to cure it. Quickest relief and cure for coughs and colds. Price 50c and $1.00; guaranteed at L. Taggart's drug store. Trial bottles free.

There is no preservatiou without purification.

Man's Unreasonableness.

Is often as great as woman's. But Thos. S. Austin, Mgr., of the "Republican," of Leavenworth, Ind., was not unreasonable, when he refused to allow the doctors to operate on his wife, for female trouble. "Instead," he says, we concluded to try Electric Bitters. My wife was then so sick, she ceuld hardly leave her bed, and five [5] physicians had failed to relive her. After taking Electric Bitters, she was perfectly cured, and can now perform all her household duties." Guaranteed by L. Taggart druggist, price 50c.

There is seldom any salt in the salted sermon.

"I Thank The Lord."

Cried Hannah Plant, of Little Rock-Ark., "for the relief I got from Bucklen's Arnica Salve. It cured my fearful running sores, which nothing else would heal, and from which I had suffered for 5 years." It is a marvelous healer for cuts, burns and wounds. Guaranteed at L. Taggart's drug store; 25c.

Laziness is the fruit of misdirected philosophy.

A Disastrous Calamity.

It is a disastrous calamity, when you lose your health, because indigestion and constipation have sapped it away. Prompt relief can be had in Dr. King's New Life Pills. They build up your digestive organs, and cure headache, dizzines, colic, constipation, etc. Guaranteed at L. Taggart's drug store; 25c.

You can't always tell—unless you are a woman.

Do not be deceived by counterfeits when you buy Witch Hazel Salve. The name of E. C. DeWitt & Co., is on every box of the genuine. Piles in their worst form will soon pass away if you will apply DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve night and morning. Best for Cuts, Burns, Boils, Tetter, Eczema, etc. Sold by R. C. Dodson.

The crying need of a childless home is a baby.

A Liquid Cold Cure.

A Cough Syrup which drives a cold out of the system by acting as a cathartic on the bowels is offered in Kennedy's Laxative Honey and Tar. Clears the throat, strengthens the lungs and bronchal tubes. The mother's friend and the children's favorite. Best for Croup, Whooping Cough. etc. A liquid cold cure and the only Cough Syrup which moves the bowels and works all cold out of the system. Sold by R. C. Dodson.

A life is but a lamp, without the oil of love.

But Few Are Free.

But few people are entirely free from indigestion at this season of the year. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure is not only the best remedy to use because it digests what you eat but because it also enables the digestive apparatus to assimilate and transform all foodt into tissues—building blood. Kodol relieves sour stomach, heart burn, belching, and all forms of Indigestion.

Imagination doeth make cowards of us all.

Every Ounce You Eat.

Every ounce of food you eat that fails to digest does a pound of harm. It turns the entire meal into poison. This not only deprives the blood of the necessary tissues—building material, but it poisons it. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure is a perfect digestant. It digests the food regardless of the condition of the stomach. It allows that organ to rest and get strong again. Relieves Belching, Heart Burn, Sour Stomach, Indigestion, Palpitation of the Heart, etc. Sold by R. C. Dodson.

CAMERON.

Mrs. E. Krape, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Olsen, who has been seriously ill is recovering and her many friends hope to see her well again soon.

Mr. Fred Meagher and wife, of Port Allegany, are visiting at the Huntington Farm.

Operators Page and Hoyt, of Cameron station, are on the sick list, their places being filled by operations Randolph, of Emporium, and Lewis, of Elgin. By the way operator Lewis is aomething of a pugilist, having shown one of our young men a few points Monday evening.

J. H. Yocum left for Natchez, Miss., where he has accepted a position with the Amalgamated Lumber Co.

Everybody is workiug but Uncle John McCann.

We are glad to see that Susie and Willie Sullivan are able to be out again, after their severe sickness with typhoid fever.

Thomas Schrieves has returned from West Virginia, where he has been employed by the Dunlevie Lumber Co.

Frank Toner and Robert Smith were business callers in Beechwood Saturday, inspecting some timber property.

Mrs. G. L. Page is visiting friends in Westport and Cooks Run

Mrs. Olsen has returned from Williamsport, where she has been visiting her daughter.

Mrs. Robert Lord is visiting friends in Sinnamahoning.

Mrs. F. C. Hoyt has returned from a visit with friends in Rochester.

Miss Lulu Dickey, of Renovo, spent a few days with friends in town last week.

The parties who dropped their glove in Robert Lord's hen coop can have same by calling at Mr. Lord's residence. Mr. Lord says no one can steal chickens with gloves on.

The oyster supper and dance given at the K. G. E. Hall for the purpose of raisiug funds to purchase a new organ for the school, was a complete success. Great credit is due to the earnest efforts, of Mr. John Schwab and Miss Edna Summerson, the two popular school teachers. We are proud of our school and of our teachers. The steady advancement of our children in their studies is a splendid tribute to their efficiency.

Foreman Robinson has lost a pig. Suitable reward will be paid if returned to owner.

The poet laureate begs to add:

Has any one seen 'Squire Robinson's pig,
He has ears like a mule but not near as big;
He can run like a race horse and swim like a duck
While Joseph pursues him with very bad luck.

HUNTLEY.

Ervin Parks has recovered from a severe attack of grip.

H. F. Smith, of Cameron, passed through here this week with a buck deer.

Wm. and David Logue are enjoying a hunting trip this week.

Mrs. W. R. Smith of Kohinoor Junction was guest of Mrs. Dennis O'Sullivan of Large Run, Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Carson of Riverside Terrace, spent Sunday with Mrs. D. O'Sullivan.

Wm. Carter of the Wilson Bros., Lumber Co., while walking past one of the lumber piles had a very narrow escape, Thursday night. Some heavy timbers became loosened and fell upon him, bearing him to the ground and cutting him severely about the face and head. He was rescued in an unconscious condition and it will be some time before he will be well again.

Misses Alice Jordan and Myrtle Logue gave an oyster supper last Frinay evening for the benefit of the union church. While the attendanee was fairly good, it might have been better had it been advertised a littte more. The PRESS is always willing to lend a helping hand in sucq worthy causes.

A meeting of the church people of Huntley was called Thanksgiving day in honor of Rev. Miss Hayward, who was presented with a collectiou, accompanied by the best wishes of the community for her good work here the past season. A. W. Smith had charge of the ceremonies.

As Uncle Billy Shakespeare says:

The eagle is a noble bird,
He spreads his wings on high;
We pay him highest tribute
On the Fourth day of July.

The turkey is another bird,
He walks upon the ground,
And every one his praises sing,
When the Holidays come around.

But while we love our Eagle dear,
And honors to him pay,
The Turkey has the drop on him,
Upon Thanksgiving day.

SINNAMAHONING.

Hunting is all the go now and a good many are in the woods.

J. A. Wykoff brought in the first deer of the season.

There are about sixty-five hunters on Carthaus mountain this week. No deer as yet.

Constable Crain is still after the Sabbath breakers. He arrested a party for shooting birds on Sunday.

J. R. Bachelder, constable and collector for Grove township was up to the county seat last Wednesday and settled up his duplicate fo r1905. He was the last to get his duplicate and the second to to settle.

The Liars Club has started up for the winter in good shape, according to the hunting stories. Bushor said he captured a coon a few nights ago that weighed forty pounds, dressed. Will Davis said he killed one that dressed eighty pounds; then comes Geo. Logue with another whopper as big as a common pig, a fam- of four coons dressing 140, 137 and 131 pounds and a 40 pound cub. It don't pay to raise hogs here since such coons can be caught.

James Little Logue captured a big three pronged doe deer last week.

The little daughter of A. L. St. Clair's while after the cow, one evening last week came upon a bear, which was eating wild grapes. The bear growled and run one way and the littie girl the other. She said the bear seemed to run faster than she did but she did not want to see where it went, so long as it did not bother her.

J. F. Wolf had a close call and not break the game law last Wednesday. He killed a large doe deer and forgot to reload his gun. When a large buck came prancing along, he snapped him and found that he had no load in his gun.

The Powder Company have about eighty stone masons at work, hurrying up the foundations before the ground freezes.

Miss Nellie Marsh and Miss Avis Lane of Mason Hill, were visiting friends here Friday.

Miss Mabel Ingerson of Providence, R. I., visited Miss Ethel Barr at Wyside, Thursday.

Wm. Shores of DuBois visited among friends here last week.

DEBSE.

SIZERVILLE.

W. R. Sizer is now able to be around again.

N. C. Steven of Gardeau was in town Sunday.

Miss Maud Evans and Mr. William McDowell, of this place were united id marriage before Squire Larrabee at Emporium last Thursday. We wish the couple many happy returns.

Mr. and Mrs. Jonn Wygant left Tuesday to attend Wm. Sprung's funeral at Emporium.

The shock of explosion at Emporium was plainly felt here and at Gardeau.

SENATOR.

The Columbia Hearld gives the following hint which would be invaluable to newspaper men but for one thing: "The time to borrom money," said a Calumbian the other day, "is when you don't need it. If you have $10 in your pocket and don't need any more; borrow $5 from the first friend you meet. Then repey him the next day and he will imagine himself under obligations to you. Then the next time you really need money, it will be easy to get it from him."

STRANGE ADVICE!

Dr. G. G. Green gives alert personal attention to his great humanitarian contract.

¶In our Almanac for many years past we have given unusual advice to those afflicted with coughs, colds, throat or lung troubles or consumption. We have told them if they did not receive any special benefit after the use of one 75-cent size bottle of German Syrup, to consult their doctor. ¶We did not ask them or urge them to use a large number of bottles, as is the case in the advertising of many other remedies. Our confidence in German Syrup makes it possible for us to give such advice. ¶We know by the experience of over 35 years that one 75-cent bottle of German Syrup will speedily relieve or cure the worst coughs, colds, bronchial or lung troubles—and that, even in bad cases of consumption, one large bottle of German Syrup will work wonders. ¶New trial bottles, 25c.; regular size, 75c. At all druggists.

Liars Club.

The Sinnamahoning Liars Club is doing fine. All that is wanted is a little snow and the house will be filled. New rules have been adopted and any member telling a yarn over a year old is fined 13 cents and stand suspended until the fine is paid. There has been so many yarns spun that are old and worn out, that the members begin to think they true, this being against the rules of the organization, which must be strictly adhered to.

I. R. B. and Pap Blodget have agreed to surprise the club should a little fall of snow come and will beat the man who found the automobile tire in the hog's stomach. That fellow is welcome to our ranks, and should his name be proposed, he will be accepted sure pop. We need more material of this kind. The Treasurer reported the funds of the club getting very low, only six cents being in sight. The hat will be passed Saturday night. It is not safe to go into the woods without a little snake bite as it makes better yarns on your return.

CONAN DOYLE, THE FAMOUS CREATOR OF "SHERLOCK HOLMES" RECEIVES THE HIGHEST PRICE EVER PAID IN AMERICA FOR ANY SERIAL STORY

$25,000 for Just the Magazine Rights of His Thrilling New Romance, "Sir Nigel."

EXCLUSIVELY IN THE SUNDAY PHILADELPHIA PRESS.

When the most successful novelist of our time at the zenith of his fame, writes his undoubted masterpiece, the literary event calls for more than passing comment. The eyes of all the world who write, and of all the world, who read, become fixed upon the career of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, Knight by grace of King Edward, and by grace of the people the first story-teller in the world to-day.

No author is better qualified to put forth a volume that will endure as long as English literature is extant than Conan Doyle, and no work will come nearer being the greatest story that the world has ever read than "Sir Nigel" for which the astonishing price of $25,000 has been paid, not only for just the American magazine rights, but for the rights for just this publication.

All the critics say that Conan Doyle's fame rests not upon his "Sherlock Holmes" stories, but upon his "White Company," a tale of the middle ages. And another "White Company" this thrilling new romance is to be, in which Conan Doyle takes up "Sir Nigel" at the age of twenty-two, just as he is setting forth in life to mend with his sword the fallen fortunes of his noble house and family.

Critics and editors who have been favored with early readings of it say it is unquestionably the greatest historical romance ever written, and will without doubt be the literary sensation of the year. The first installment begins in the Sunday Magazine section of "The Philadelphia Press," beginning Sunday, December 3. Nowhere else can it be procured in book or other form; therefore it behoves you to leave your order with your newsdealer or carrier to serve you with "The Sunday Press" of that date, December 3.

PERSUADED.

I am persuaded from mine unbelief,
And to the keeping of my faith am won.
Because a little shining of God's sun
Clears me a pathway through a world of grief;
I could not but accept the sweet relief,
Since I had learned how hard it was to run
Where sin's wild tangle, in the shadows spun
Denied my soul her rest, however brief.

Where, in the crowd, hope cheers a drooping mate,
Where kindness, in the sunshine and the rain,
Gives to the casement of the common pain,
And points one past the gates of fear and fate—
Where prays a penitent his inmost prayer,
I am persuaded that the light is there.

A ROSE OF NORMANDY

By WILLIAM R. A. WILSON

Reinforced by others from the interior of the woods, they prepared for another advance. This time, instead of rushing directly in one solid line, they separated, running a few steps and then suddenly crouching down close to the ground. The barricade was finally reached, and after waiting to receive its fire, they precipitated themselves upon it before the defenders could load again. The brush-heaps were ignited, and their light served to render the foe more easily distinguishable. The chevalier was seemingly at every spot along the line at once, cheering his allies and ably directing the defense. At this moment, however, just as the tide seemed about to turn against the attacking force, the dreaded Iroquois yell was heard from the river at the rear of the defenders. Terror seized them, believing themselves to be surrounded by the enemy, and despite all the efforts of Baugis to rally them they fled southward along the river's edge. A score of wily Iroquois had entered the river above, and swimming noiselessly down until they were well past the fort, had landed and approached the besieged form the rear, making as much noise as possible, hoping to be able to deceive them into thinking that a large force was behind them. They succeeded admirably, and soon the entire space about the base of the fort was one mass of ferocious hostile faces.

Tonti in the meantime had directed the fire of both of the cannon and the guns of his men to the best advantage. The young Indian he had posted to watch the river for any approach from that direction had reported nothing, and was nowhere to be found when the yells of the small Iroquois band proclaimed the success of their undertaking. He saw with tears of rage in his eyes the retreat of the allies under Baugis. There was no time to afford him aid, as the fort was surrounded before he could order a portion of his men to their assistance. As has been stated, the rock was absolutely inaccessible from three sides, so the whole attention of both the attacking party and the defenders of the fort was directed towards the remaining side. The approach here was by a zigzag path, less than four feet in width, fashioned out of the rock. Up this path the savages swarmed, only to be shot down or crushed by stones let drop from the walls above. The number of Iroquois, however, was so great that no sooner did one fall than another took his place.

Tonti was surprised in not seeing Miron anywhere, for he had sufficient knowledge of Indian warfare to recognize his directing hand in the mode of attack, so different from the methods usually employed by the savages. Pompon, with eye alert to catch sight of the villain's face, moved rapidly about the enclosure, finding time occasionally to run back to the lodge where the nuns and Renee were, to assure her of Tonti's safety and report the progress of the defense. He always returned, however, to Tonti's elbow, aiding him in the carrying out of their efforts to repulse the horde slowly climbing the pathway, a painful fact made evident by the glare of the blazing brush-fires.

The side of the fort towards the river being furthest from these fires was in comparative darkness. The shade was not so deep, however, as to prevent an observer, had he been present, from seeing the figure of the young Iroquois spy slip out from a place of concealment, and, mounting the platform, peer anxiously over the edge into the river below. In answer to some signal he stooped, and picking up a long object, fastened one end about the flagstaff on the platform and threw the other into the river. He waited until he heard a splash, then, mounting over the edge of the palisade, he disappeared. He had procured a strong vine rope and thus effected his escape.

He had been gone but a short time when a sound as of some one ascending the rope could have been heard, and soon a hand touched the top and the half-naked figure of a man appeared. He cautiously gained the shadow and rapidly approached one after another of the small buildings in the enclosure, listening at each one before passing on to the next. At length he came to the one in which the nuns and Renee were anxiously awaiting the outcome of the fight. The nuns were praying, while Renee, with rosary in hand, sat beside the burning pine knot, listening for every sound. Pompon had just left her. She strove to concentrate her mind upon the beads in her hand. She looked down. A noise at the door aroused her. Perhaps it was Pompon returning with bad news! She gave a shriek of terror. The door had opened and the Comte de Miron, in all the ferocity of his Iroquois war-paint, with a knife held between his teeth, stood before her.

The nuns on seeing this terrible apparition ran to the farthest corner. Miron approached Renee before she could overcome her terror sufficiently to move, snatched up the light, applied it to the bark wall of the lodge which quickly ignited, seized Renee in his arms and was gone.

The battle still raged furiously for the possession of the gate. Already had the line of crawling, climbing devils almost gained the top of the path. The situation was desperate. The young Sieur de Boisrondet approached at a signal from Tonti. "Tell the men if the gate is gained and forced we must make a last stand just within the entrance. We can do nothing if these fiends once really enter the yard."

The young man saluted and then in a hesitating tone, said: "M. le Capitaine will not be offended if a subordinate were to make a suggestion? It is only our great extremity that leads me to speak."

"Non, certainement," replied Tonti. "Speak up and let us know what you have in mind."

"You will remember some time ago you placed in my care the work of excavating a new magazine in which to store our powder?"

"Yes."

"Well, as M. le Capitaine left the entire task to me, the choice of situation as well as the oversight of the excavation—"

"Go on," cried Tonti impatiently, as the yells of the savages rose louder than before, indicating that an advance had been made.

"I thought it might be a good plan sometime to have a mine laid ready to be exploded—"

"So you—"

"I made the excavation so that it would lie just beneath the outside path some score of feet from the top."

"Sangue di Dio!" cried Tonti joyously, as the idea of the young man flashed into his mind. "We are saved. You mean to fire the magazine beneath their very feet, and make an opening in the path they can never cross?"

"That was my thought," replied the young man modestly, flushing with pleasure as he saw his leader approved it. "The powder has not been stored there yet, but can be in a very few moments."

"Take three men with you," ordered Tonti, "and place half of all our stock of powder in the new magazine, and arrange so that it can be exploded on a given signal."

"In 20 minutes it shall be ready," replied the youth, and hastened away to carry out the command.

"Hold out for a half-hour longer and we shall blow these devils to perdition," shouted Pompon in the ears of the line of men defending the pass. A cheer was the response. Soon the young Sieur de Boisrondet returned. "It is accomplished," he reported with a smile.

Just then a strange lull in the confused sounds of the combat occurred. It lasted but a few seconds; but during that silence there came to the ears of the men the sound of a woman's scream from the interior of the fort yard. Both Tonti and Pompon recognized the voice and turned together. The light of the burning building was seen, and they started at a rapid pace, Tonti shouting to the Sieur de Boisrondet to take command until his return. More agile than his friend, nerved to action by the fear in his heart for Renee's safety, he gained the other side of the fort first. By the light of the blazing lodge he beheld his enemy ascending the platform bearing in his arms the form of his beloved. With a cry he sprang after him. Miron heard his voice, and, having gained the top, turned to meet his foe. Tonti felt for his pistol that he had placed in his belt but found that it had dropped out in his hasty progress. Nothing daunted, without a weapon, he rushed up the little ladder and grappled with his enemy. Miron dropped Renee to the platform and received Tonti with a smile of savage joy, brandishing his knife. Tonti struck the arm holding the weapon a furious blow with his iron hand, to force him to drop it, and seized his throat with the other.

Miron still retained his knife and Tonti by the fast increasing light saw the blade descend, and felt as it were a red-hot iron plunged into his shoulder. Again it fell, this time into his back. A blackness fell suddenly before his eyes. His hold upon the throat of his adversary loosened, a roaring filled his ears, followed by a great explosion which seemed to shake the platform on which they stood, and he fell back and knew no more.

Miron did not stop, but throwing his knife aside, stooped down and gathered Renee, who called loudly for help, within his arms again. He approached the palisade and had already made preparations for his descent when he saw Pompon appear upon the rampart. With an oath he drew back, and putting Renee down once more, made ready to receive this new attack. Neither of the men had a weapon, but each sprang at the other's throat like some ferocious animal; they clinched and struggled to and fro; neither was able to throttle the other, so evenly was their strength matched. Renee, with streaming hair and terror-stricken eyes, dragged herself towards the motionless form of Tonti out of the way of the combatants, who swayed from side to side in their desperate efforts. Now Miron has the advantage as he strives to trip his adversary; but Pompon, quick and agile, recovers his footing, and the struggle is renewed on equal terms. Backward they rush, and Miron barely saves himself from falling from the platform into the yard of the fort by a desperate wrench. They turn and twist and turn again. The rough planks beneath their feet creak under their tread: the whole structure vibrates with the violence of the fight.

At length Pompon's strength began to fail, and he felt the grip on his throat tighten, while his own slowly relaxed. They were alone; the din of battle, the shouts of the French, and the war-cries of the Indians, reached his ears from the other side of the fort. There was no aid near. He could not maintain the struggle longer. He glanced at Renee, crouching helpless and terrified beside his wounded friend, and a look of high resolve came into his eye that made his ugly scarred countenance glow with the beauty of a noble purpose, a look his antagonist saw and dreaded. Renee met his glance and understood. With the cry, "Adieu, mon Capitaine!" he forced his foe back by one supreme effort. Another step toward the outer edge is made, and a grim smile of satisfaction appears upon his face. One more—Miron's foot slipped in a pool of Tonti's blood; he strove desperately to regain his balance and failed; and the two men locked fast in a savage embrace swayed to and fro an instant, then plunged headlong over the edge of the palisade, and fell, down, down, through the blackness of the night, and disappeared beneath the dark surface of the swiftly moving stream at the foot of the cliff.

CHAPTER XXVII.

THE END IS REACHED, AND TONTI COMES INTO HIS OWN.

Week after week of suffering followed for Tonti. The desperate nature of his wounds sent the fever mounting to his brain, and he tossed wearily about, fighting against numberless foes, living over again many of the events through which he had passed during the last two years. In all his battles did the lowering sinister face of Miron appear; through all the scenes did the form of Renee flit, ever with her eyes fixed upon him, at times glad and laughing, now sad and reproachful, and again with the love-light born of a deep and noble passion shining through them. At times the figure of La Salle approached and looked reprovingly at him. Then did Tonti break forth in his own defense. "Ah! mon ami," he would murmur, "did you but know the task your friendship imposed; did you but realize the heavy load your confession of your love for Renee, my Renee, laid upon me, you would not hold me worthy of reproof. Could you but have seen my struggle, daily, hourly, to trample down the love that had sprung into existence at the same time as your own, to maintain the honor of my word, to uphold that faithfulness to you that I knew was the only thing I had to offer to her memory, you would have pitied me."

Again his other friend stood beside him and he appealed to him: "Mon cher Pompon," he cried, "you know the temptation I was subject to. You must know, for you were with us; you heard with me the music in her voice, more delightful than the harmonies of many birds. You heard her step, lighter than the soft summer wind blowing over the Sicilian fields. You saw the warmth in her cheek, how it was ruddier than the distant glow of Vesuvius against the sky at night. You felt the grace and charm of her presence, pure as that of an angel fresh from the throne of God, sweet as the memory of childish days, when one fell asleep with the melody of a mother's voice soothing one's ears. Yes, you know it all, for you were there. You know I triumphed, but at what a cost: to have one's heart's blood squeezed out drop by drop, and yet unable to do aught but smile at each fresh pain."

At times he fancied himself ill and in great anguish. Then would the figure of Renee, robed as she had been while waiting upon the sick, come and put to his lips a refreshing draught or lay her soothing hand upon his feverish head. At the touch a delicious feeling of coolness suffused itself throughout his frame, and peace and restfulness would come. By and by he would dream he awakened and saw Renee sitting near, with his hand resting lightly in her palm. He knew it was but a dream and did not stir lest it should vanish and be replaced by one less pleasing. Once the figure leaned over him and touched his forehead with her lips. One day as he lay still watching the dream-figure beside him, his vision cleared and he knew he was awake. He flushed lightly and withdrew his hand, and Renee realized that her patient had regained consciousness.

He soon slept, this time not to dream, but to gather strength. Thus did he sleep and awaken day by day. Each awakening, thanks to the effect of the ointment Renee had found in Pompon's bag, brought a feeling of renewed vigor and a sharper bound to his pulse that sent the life stream quickening to every part. Whenever he roused himself he saw the same patient figure of her whom he loved, watching, praying beside him. She would not let him talk, but ere long admitted the chevalier and Boisrondet. Their hearty clasp of the hand and cheering words urged on his convalescence. They told him little by little of the events of that awful night. How, after his leaving the gate, the Indians had advanced along the path with a rush, and Boisrondet had, on his own responsibility, fired the mine, which sound had been the last his ears had heard when he sank beneath the murderous hand of Miron. How the chasm formed by this explosion had prevented any further attack upon the fort. How Baugis had finally rallied his forces, and, approaching the Iroquois from the rear, had made a strong onslaught, just as they recoiled from the exploded mine, and slaughtered many, driving some into the river and putting the rest to flight, pursuing them for eight days, until the hosts that had assailed so boldly were reduced to a few struggling bands that slunk despairingly homeward. In answer to an inquiring look they told him that Miron was dead and that Pompon had gone on a journey.

Lazily he watched his nurse as she moved about the room, half regretting his daily increasing strength that warned him of a coming time when he would no longer need her assistance and would lose the delight of having her near him. But he shrank from contemplating that event, knowing that the taking up of their separate duties once more would tax his powers to the full. Then came the days when, propped up in a chair, he sat in the doorway and enjoyed the bright October sunshine, while the Indian chiefs and soldiers came to pay their respects to the commander they loved. One afternoon after he had been able to stand and take a few steps he was told by Renee of Pompon's end. Of the sacrifice that he had made for her and him. How the bodies of the two men had been found floating a few miles below the fort still clasped in their fierce embrace. How the Indians had stolen the body of the comte and burned it amidst execrations and maledictions. How she had requested the chevalier to have a grave dug for Pompon out of the rock within the enclosure of the fort, close to the scene of his death struggle.

Tale of Two Cities.

Notwithstanding the disparity in size between Seattle and Tacoma, the rivalry in other respects between the two cities is as keen as in their earlier days, when they were young "boom" towns. A curious instance of this is seen in the names by which the towering mountain that lifts its tall peak to the southeast in the two places. In Tacoma it is treason to call it anything else than "Mount Tacoma," while in Seattle it is "Mount Rainier." A traveler about half-way between the two cities saw two boys fighting by the side of the road. Before he could separate them one of the boys got the other down and after banging the victim's face into the soft ground, sat panting, but victorious astride of him. "What's the name o' that mountain now?" the victor demanded of the vanquished lad. "Mount Rainier," he says, "that was humbly replied the vanquished lad. The effort to free his mouth from the mud and grass which his opponent had rubbed into it made the answer unintelligible to the traveler; but the victor was satisfied and let him up.—Youth's Companion.

Daniel in Wrong Place.

A clergyman, recently engaged with another of a different belief in a controversy regarding some question of religion, sent to a newspaper office a long article supporting his side of the question. The manuscript had been "set up" in type for the next day's issue. About midnight the telephone bell rang furiously, the minister at the other end asking for the city editor. "I am sorry to trouble you at such a late hour," he said, "but I am in great trouble." "What can I do for you?" was asked. "In the article I sent you to-day I put Daniel in the fiery furnace. Please take him out and put him in the lions' den.—Argonaut.

Underground Work.

William Radcliffe, physician to William III. and Queen Anne, was a parsimonious old fellow, but he respected a man of his own stamp. One time he had had some paving done on his property and the workman came to him to demand his pay. "What, you rascal, do you pretend to be paid for such a piece of work?" cried the miser. "Why, you have spoiled my pavement and then covered it over with earth to hide your bad work." "Doctor," replied the man, "mine is not the only work that the earth hides." "You dog, you," laughed the man of physic, "are you a wit? You must be poor. Come in." And he paid him.

Could Hold a Lot.

The story is told of a teetotaler who was trying to persuade a bibulous friend to quit drinking. "You can't drink all the whisky in the world," he was saying, when suddenly they came to the town distillery. It loomed before them, every window brightly illuminated. "No," said the other, thickly, "but look there! I ken make 'em work overtime."—Argonaut.

Unappreciated Eloquence.

It is well for a speaker to know where his peroration is going to end when he begins. I heard a young lawyer make his maiden speech. It was in defense of a fellow who was half-witted, arrested on the charge of stealing a hog, the young attorney having been appointed by the court.

His defense was that his client was an idiot, and unable to distinguish between right and wrong. He closed a flowery speech with this peroration:

"Gentlemen of the jury, look at my client. That low, receding forehead, those lusterless eyes, portend that he was deprived by nature of the power to distinguish right from wrong, ignorant of the distinction which exists between his own property and that of others. To him, as to the two-year-old child, whatever he wants and can reach belongs to him. He knows neither why it does nor why it does not. But, gentlemen of the jury, such are the institutions of this, our free and glorious country, that my client, idiot though he is, stands for trial to-day by a jury of his peers."

The culprit got the full penalty of the law.

Convincing Evidence.

Winthrop, Cal., Nov. 20th (Special).—A plain and straight forward story is always the most convincing. And that is what has impressed us most in reading the testimonials in regard to Dodd's Kidney Pills. The experience told by Davis Lewis, of this place, bears the ring and stamp of truth upon it. He says:—

"I was troubled for six months with dull, heavy pains in the small of my back, sometimes it passed into my stomach, at other times up between my shoulders. When it was in my stomach I was doubled up, and hardly knew what to do for the pain. I was advised to take all kinds of remedies, and did so, but without getting any relief. Then some one told me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. I got a box and began taking them. The first few doses gave me relief; by the time I had finished them all the pain was gone and I have been well ever since."

Not So Badly Off.

"I've had to work for everything I've got!" growled the pessimist.

"Well, what of it?" observed his optimist friend. "Some people work a whole lot and don't have anything to show for it!"—Detroit Free Press.

GRATEFUL TO CUTICURA.

For Instant Relief and Speedy Cure of Raw and Scaly Humor, Itching Day and Night for Many Months.

"I do wish you would publish this letter so that others suffering as I have may see it and be helped. For many months awful sores covered my face and neck, scabs forming, which would swell and itch terribly day and night, and then break open, running blood and matter. I had tried many remedies, but was growing worse, when I started with Cuticura. The first application gave me instant relief, and when I had used two cakes of Cuticura Soap and three boxes of Cuticura Ointment, I was completely cured. (Signed) Miss Nellie Vander Wiele, Lakeside, N. Y."

TOLD OF THE TITLED.

Lord Roberts doesn't smoke, touches wine but seldom, and rises at 5:30 every morning, summer and winter—no matter how late he may have retired.

Lord Sheffield is the proud possessor of a photograph of the Billington cricket club of Oxford, and among the team is King Edward, then an Oxford undergraduate.

Princess Louise of Coburg is said to have sold the manuscript of her "Memoirs" to a Brussels editor for $200,000, and Leopold has ordered the police to find the editor and seize the book.

Baron de Forest is said to be contemplating the establishment of an empire in the Sahara desert, and carping critics declare that the British government will obtain a political advantage by the process.

Lord Brassey offered to erect, at his own expense, a large number of wooden cottages on the English model for the sufferers by the recent Italian earthquake. The offer was accepted by the government.

The duke of Argyll, King Edward's brother-in-law, has enlarged his literary scope by writing a book of nonsense verse in the form of a long ballad. His first work, "The United States After the War," brought him to the notice of American readers.

Sir William Macgregor, governor of Newfoundland, is one of the most remarkable men in the British colonial service, both physically and mentally, and is the only governor to wear the Albert medal, which is the civilian counterpart of the Victorian cross.

The princess of Wied, who is a prominent figure in the court circles at Berlin, and whose husband is in the line of succession to the throne of Holland, buys all the ill-used horses that come to her notice and gives them the benefit of a stay in her well-appointed stables.

SCHOOL NOTES.

Miss Ellen Stone, the American missionary who was captured by brigands several years ago, will open a female college at Monastir, which will be conducted on American ideas.

Rhodes scholars at Oxford university, England, have come to be known as "Rhodesters." This is not in any way a term of reproach, for so far the young men have been conspicuously successful both intellectually and socially.

The Ramsbottom (England) education committee granted all the school children of the town a half holiday on the occasion of the visit of a circus, in order "to give the poorer children an opportunity of seeing unfamiliar animals."

A remarkably successful attempt is making in Germany to instill in the public school children a love for plant culture. Last year a gardening association inaugurated a system by which flowers and plants in pots were presented to a large number of children, and prizes, to be awarded at the end of the summer school term this year, were offered to such as should merit them by the care of their plants. In a single town, Wuerzburg, 133 children received these prizes at the school exhibitions.

CENTER SHOTS.

Liquid courage is apt to evaporate.

People with high tempers when unduly excited are inclined to indulge in low language.

The husband of a society leader gets a lot more sympathy than he knows anything about.

The misanthrope who feels that he hasn't a friend in the world might just as well be a book agent.

PASSING OF PORRIDGE.

Makes Way for the Better Food of a Better Day.

"Porridge is no longer used for breakfast in my home," writes a loyal Britain from Huntsville, Ont. This was an admission of no small significance to one "brought up" on the time-honored stand-by.

"One month ago," she continues, "I bought a package of Grape-Nuts food for my husband, who had been an invalid for over a year. He had passed through a severe attack of pneumonia and la grippe combined, and was left in a very bad condition when they passed away.

"I tried everything for his benefit, but nothing seemed to do him any good. Month followed month and he still remained as weak as ever. I was almost discouraged about him when I got the Grape-Nuts, but the result has compensated me for my anxiety.

"In the one month that he has eaten Grape-Nuts he has gained 10 pounds in weight, his strength is rapidly returning to him, and he feels like a new man. Now we all eat Grape-Nuts food, and are the better for it. Our little 5-year-old boy, who used to suffer from pains in the stomach after eating the old-fashioned porridge, has no more trouble since he began to use Grape-Nuts, and I have no more doctor's bills to pay for him.

"We use Grape-Nuts with only sweet cream, and find it the most tasty dish in our bill of fare.

"Last Monday I ate 4 teaspoonfuls of Grape-Nuts and cream for breakfast, nothing else, then set to work and got my morning's work done by 9 o'clock, and felt less tired, much stronger, than if I had made my breakfast on meat, potatoes, etc., as I used to. I wouldn't be without Grape-Nuts in the house for any money." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. There's a reason.

OUSTER SUIT
Against Standard Oil Co. Will be Prosecuted.
BY MISSOURIANS.

Testimony Taken at St. Louis Shows Some of the Peculiar Tactics of the Trust.

New York, Nov. 24.—Subpenaes were issued yesterday for John D. Rockefeller, Henry H. Rogers, Henry M. Flagler and other financiers to appear as witnesses in the two suits pending in Missouri to oust the Standard Oil Co. and two other oil companies from doing business in that state. The subpenaes directed the witnesses to appear on December 4 before Frederick H. Sanborn, of this city, who was appointed by Gov. Folk to act as commissioner for the state of Missouri.

The suits were filed in Missouri on March 29, 1905, and include besides the Standard Oil Co. the Republic Oil Co. and the Waters-Pierce Oil Co.

This suit is in the supreme court of Missouri. The second suit is very similar to the first, but is brought in the circuit court of Jackson county, Missouri.

St. Louis, Nov. 24.—Inquiry into the methods of the Standard, Republic and Waters-Pierce oil companies in Missouri, was resumed Thursday before Special Commissioner R. A. Anthony. This will be the last hearing conducted in St. Louis until after the Missouri supreme court has decided whether Attorney General Hadley has the right to compel the oil companies to produce the companies' books or make the companies' officers testify.

William A. Morgan, formerly manager for the Standard Oil Co. at Sedalia, Mo., testified that the Standard Oil Co. issued orders to its agents to undersell competitors at all hazards.

"When I took charge of the Sedalia office," said the witness, "the Standard Oil Co. controlled 50 or 60 per cent. of the business in that territory. Inside of a short period I had taken the business away from competitors and in 1901 controlled 90 per cent. of the trade in the Sedalia territory. The Waters-Pierce Co. sold within 18 miles of Sedalia, and I was not allowed to go into their territory."

He said that the company furnished him with barrel gauges by which he would be able to show a customer that a competitor sold "short" barrels, but that he had never used those gauges because he did not think it was proper.

ENDED IN MURDER.

A Fierce Battle Over Election Frauds —Two Men Who Voted Illegally Are Sent to Prison.

New York, Nov. 24.—Election frauds are believed by the police to have caused the murder Wednesday night of W. F. Harrington in the Little Naples dance hall and also the probably fatal injuries of Abraham Juckerman, who was found with a fractured skull some distance away from the Little Naples. The dance hall is at 57 Great Jones street and is conducted by Paul Kelly, leader of an East Side gang. From papers found on the dead man and from information obtained from nine prisoners, two of them women, who were arrested after the murder, the police learned that the quarrel started over election matters. One of the prisoners had a marked ballot of the last election in his pocket.

The magnitude of the election fraud investigation was increased yesterday by several new cases. John Elder was held in $10,000 bail, charged with illegal voting and perjury, and James Gallagher was held in $5,000 bail on a charge of perjury.

Frank D. Matzig, a Tammany member of a district board of election inspectors, arrested on a charge of neglect of duty, was held in $5,000 bail.

W. R. Hearst's lawyers claim that 91 votes were found in one election district of the Twentieth assembly district which should have been counted for Hearst and were not.

Two sentences for illegal voting were passed yesterday by the supreme court. Thomas Halle, who confessed that he voted illegally under the name of Thomas Hall, received an indeterminate sentence of not less than a year and ten months. The same sentence was meted out to Thomas D. Brennan.

Counsel for W. R. Hearst yesterday raised the legal point that Mayor McClellan will be mayor of New York, only as a holdover after December 31, next, unless Mr. Hearst's fight for a recount is ended before that time. This was said to be due to the fact that under an order issued last week by Justice Amend, of the supreme court, the board of canvassers of New York county cannot issue a certificate of election either to Mayor McClellan or the comptroller or president of the board of aldermen until the proceedings attending the movement for a recount are ended.

Election Contests in Louisville.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 24.—Forty suits contesting the recent election of every city and county official in Louisville and Jefferson county were filed in the circuit court Thursday. The principal suit is that of Joseph T. O'Neill, the fusion candidate for mayor, vs. Paul C. Barth, democrat, who has just been seated.

HOUSE FOR FOWLS.

Arrangement of Building by Which Old and Young Can Be Conveniently Sheltered.

I have a poultry house that beats all others, writes an Indiana man. It is arranged for old fowls and to raise young fowls in without coming in contact with each other.

I got out sills 7x7 inch, put on stone at corners, then made a fill of 6 inches of rough stone, then put on a layer of clay and tamped it. The building is 12x24 feet, 12 feet high in front and 6 feet at rear, fronting the south, and roof slanting to the north. I used refuse lumber left from building a house. Used 4x4 inch posts and 1 inch siding, and stripped cracks all round except south side. I cut out a door in middle of building and two windows side by side on each side of door, making four in all.

I took the west half for roosts and dusting room and cut off a 3-foot space at north side by setting up 2x4 inch scantling at each end for roosts to rest on at D, and to make a box at bottom 8 inches from ground to catch droppings. I took two pieces of 2x4 inch for roosts, one end resting on post at D, other end supported by No. 10 wire from rafter. The roosts are 11 feet long, so they don't touch building at either end. To give more clean ground space I made a tight floor to catch droppings which roll down into box.

In February I set my hens in dusting room under roosts. This room is partitioned off from other room, so the sitters are not bothered by the other fowls. I give young chicks range of dust room by tying the mother hens. After two weeks old I give them range of other room, which had been used for laying and feeding room for old fowls. From thence I move laying boxes to dropping room opposite roosts against the wall.—Farm and Home.

POINTS FOR DUCK RAISERS

Some Don'ts and Other Things Which Will Be Worth Your Remembering.

Don't attempt to catch the ducks by their legs. It is much safer to handle them by the neck.

Don't reduce their weight by taking a lamp among them at night.

Never throw dry lime in a duck pen; it kills.

Never select the largest duck eggs for hatching; they are usually infertile.

Never set a hen on duck eggs in a dry shed unless you moisten the nest twice weekly.

Always provide plenty of carbonate and phosphate of lime to assist shell making. This is found in oyster shell.

Keep plenty of coarse sand, old mortar and a little charcoal in a box for laying ducks.

Keep ducks away from the brook at nighttime, otherwise you will lose many eggs.

To breed the most healthy ducklings, avoid the heavy, fattened show birds which lay but few eggs, and those are usually infertile. Show ducks are almost useless to breed from. It spoils them for that purpose.

Never hurry the laying ducks. It usually injures them; sometimes seriously. When handling ducks, never hold them by the wing.

When sickness attacks ducks, it is useless to doctor. The best remedy for duck ailments is plenty of sliced raw onion in the mash, and an absolutely dry, soft bed.

When you desire Runner ducks for egg production, have four to five ducks with an unrelated drake; two ducks and one drake usually produce too large a percentage of drakes, and they don't pay to fatten.

Feed well your market ducks; let them have their fill—up to ten weeks.

It costs about five cents for each pound of duck flesh.

Ducks should never be permitted to run with fowls. They both do best in pens by themselves.

When fowls and ducks are allowed to drink from the same vessel, look out for disease.—H. V. Hawkins.

Close Study of Breeds.

A close study of the breeds is not only interesting but profitable. Get acquainted with your fowls and let them get acquainted with you. A good time and place to study breeds is at fairs and poultry shows.—Michigan Farmer.

Trough for Piggy.

Be sure the pigs have a trough for themselves that cannot be reached by the mother or the other hogs. It teaches them to eat and prevents any shrinkage during weaning. It is a self-weaner.

About the best remedy for "scaly legs," which is the work of minute parasites, is an application of sulphur and melted lard once a week.

If you wish good-sized sheep, they must be grown rapidly while young.

DISTRESS AFTER MEALS

Sure Sign That Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Are Needed to Tone Up the Digestive Organs.

Loss of appetite, distress after eating, shortness of breath, a feeling of utter weakness—these are symptoms that are familiar to most sufferers from stomach trouble. Too often the ordinary doctor's treatment serves but to weaken the diseased organs.

The new tonic method of treating disorders of this kind does not aim to do the work of the stomach, does not demand that the food be pre-digested, but builds up the weakened organs, so that they can do the work that nature intended.

Mrs. L. O. Law, of No. 324 North street, Horton, Kansas, says: "In 1897, while we were living on a farm in this neighborhood, I became generally debilitated as the result of overwork. I had serious indigestion, lost my appetite, suffered from a sense of suffocation and from obstruction of the circulation, so that artificial means had to be used to restore it. After suffering for months without finding any relief, I tried a box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills of which I had read in a newspaper. The first few boxes made me lots better, and after using the third box I felt entirely well.

"I am now in excellent health and am able not only to take care of my house but also to assist my husband in a store which he has lately taken. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cured me and I can recommend them. They are so simple, so easily taken and so prompt in their action."

Remember Dr. Williams' Pink Pills do not act on the bowels. They make new blood and restore shattered nerves. In this way they carry health and vigor to every organ and fiber of the body. They are sold by all druggists or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N.Y.

Not a Lightweight.

"You've made a mistake in your paper," said the indignant man, entering the editorial sanctum. "I was one of the competitors at that athletic match yesterday, and you have called me 'the well-known lightweight champion.'"

"Well, aren't you?" said the editor.

"No, I'm nothing of the kind, and it's confoundedly awkward, because, you see, I'm a coal merchant."—Stray Stories.

Intelligent Spider.

A superstitious subscriber who found a spider in his paper wants to know if it is a bad omen. Nothing of the kind. The spider was merely looking over the paper to see who was not advertising, so it could spin its web across the store door, and thus be free from disturbance.—Kiowa (Kan.) Signal.

WINTER CLOTHING

Furnishings and Shoes.

HERE'S THE POINT: Having over-bought in every department of our FALL and WINTER CLOTHING we find ourselves compelled to inaugurate a SPECIAL SALE; further that we may attract crowds and popularize our store; to get new customers and retain our old; and to add force and prestige to our future business.

When a good thing gets beyond the ordinary some people say: "IT'S TOO GOOD TO BE TRUE," and don't take advantage of it because they think it to be a case of exaggeration. When you read these bargains and think them "Too Good to be True," don't hesitate to come to our store and let us prove them to be just as good as we say they are. All we ask is to LET US SHOW YOU.

This is a modest request and we want you to spend just as much time as you desire in looking over our stock; whether you buy or not, then if you are pleased with our goods and our manner of serving you, make your purchases. FIVE MINUTES SEEING IS BETTER THAN A MONTH OF THINKING! So, come and let us demonstrate the unequalled bargains of our sa e—Come!

REMEMBER, the prices are for thoroughly reliable goods, every article of which is in perfect condition. You will see by the prices quoted below that we have made substantial reductions in all lines and as the quality of our goods is pretty well known, we feel safe in leaving it to you, whether or not you are getting bargains.
